ARMY PROBES INTELLIGENCE LEAK

✓ ARMY SEARCHING FOR INTELLIGENCE LEAK: The Army Intelligence Command has sprung a leak somewhere in its lines of communication, and several daily intelligence summaries have been slipped to leftists in the Washington area. The Guardian ("independent radical newsweekly") of May 17 carried an article with extensive quotes from the Daily Intelligence Summary of Jan. 19 and Jan. 20, covering the period when leftists attempted to disrupt the inauguration of President Nixon. The summary is compiled at the Army Intelligence center at Ft. Holabird, Md., and is sent by teletype to various Army commands throughout the country. The Guardian story, prepared by the underground press syndicate, Liberation News Service, included excerpts from agent and informant reports. Last October a similar situation arose, when an airman in the big Air Force communications center in the Pentagon basement leaked a message exchange between two generals to leftists. The message was widely distributed by the Trotskyite-Communist Socialist Workers Party.
